DANGERS OF A COLD

Norway People Will Do Well to Keep Them.

Many bad cases of kidney trouble result from a cold or chill. Congested kidneys fall behind in filtering the poison-laden blood and backache, headache, dizziness and disordered kidney action follow. Don't neglect a cold. Use Doan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of kidney trouble. Follow this Norway resident's example:

Wm. O. Needham, retired farmer, Main St., says: "At different times when I have taken cold, my kidneys have become affected. Several years ago when I felt that my kidneys needed attention, I got Doan's Kidney Pills from F. P. Stone's Drug Store. They strengthened my kidneys, ridding my system of the excess uric acid and in a short time I felt much better."

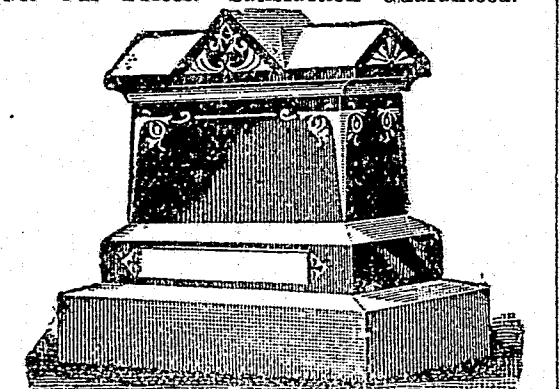

Eight years later, Mr. Needham said: "I still gladly endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. My confidence in them is as strong as ever. I occasionally use Doan's when I feel in need of them and always get fine results."

Price 60¢, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Needham had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE ANSWER OF THE HILLS

Serene the great hills soar into the sky
Above the valley ways to and fro
From hives of toil the workers come and go,
Nor pause to ask the Whither and the Why.
At dawn, when priest-vendors chant from altars
High,
At dusk, when western windows flame and glow
With sunset fires, alone the dreamers know
The hills have answers that can satisfy.
They answer not in speech yet answer still
The watcher on the eager roads of earth.
For stars are syllables in mountain speech,
And dawns have meanings over every hill
That hearts may know, if from their toil and Mirth
They listen as the hills call each to each.

FIRST NORTH-AND-SOUTH TRAIL
IN WHITE MOUNTAIN FOREST

Trampers in the White Mountain National Forest will find ready for them next summer the first north-and-south trail extending through the area of land held by the Federal Government. The new trail will be made a reality by the construction of a link from Bartlett, N. H., over Cave Mountain and Mount Parker to connect with the Davis Path on Mount Resolution. The link, which is to be constructed by the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture, and the paths with which it will connect, will extend for approximately 40 miles, from Wonalancet, at the extreme southern end of the White Mountain group, to Appalachia, at the north of the Presidential Range.

Trampers can profitably spend a week in traversing the new route according to Forest Service officials. It will pass over most of the Presidential Range, and will disclose some of the most beautiful scenery of this vacation land.

What to name the new route is being debated by the Forest Service men. One suggestion is that it be called Agiochoochook, which is the Indian name for Mt. Washington. This name is open to objection, officials say, because of its length and difficulty. There may be a compromise.

The Forest Service also expects to have in operation early next summer the two public camping grounds that are being installed on Government-owned land in the White Mountains.

OUR TRIP TO KAUI

Corns Come Off Like Banana Peel

"Gets-It" Leaves Toe Smooth As Your Palm. Never Fails.

Ever peel off a banana skin? Well, that's the way "Gets-It" peels off any corn or callus. It's a picnic. Nothing else in the world will do it.

"2 Drops of 'Gets-It,' Good-bye Corns!" But "Gets-It" because of the new secret principle in the "Gets-It" formula. "Gets-It" does away forever with "contraptions," "wrappings," "plasters," ointments that rub off, blood-letting knives, and scissors that slip into the "quick." "Gets-It" cures pain. It takes but a second or two to use "Gets-It." There's no fussing or trouble. It dries immediately. You put your stocking right back on again. Your corn will come off painless in one complete piece. That's common sense. It never fails. "Gets-It," the only sure, guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, costs but a trifle at any drug store. Mfg. by B. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Norway and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by F. P. Stone.

Our Trip to Kauai

day and not a long trip. The view obtained of the canyon was beautiful, and we got a goat. One of the boys shot him, and carried him home on his shoulders. I have his picture, and one of the goat's feet. I also took a view in the canyon, but I could not take the wonderful colors. I wish I might! We reached home in the early afternoon. I had a swim and then rest. Supper preparation came next. We have no late evenings; we usually go to bed with the birds. Besides, it was raining and we had to crawl in to keep dry.

August 21, Thursday. We were invited this day to go to Kalaheua. I and I went. It was not a long walk, but a beautiful one. Through lovely woods. In an hour and a quarter we arrived at Lookout where we had a view of Kalaheua Valley and sea, which, to me, was unsurprisingly beautiful and grand. We were at an altitude of 4000 ft., looking down into the loveliest of green valleys running down into the sea. The green and precipitous walls, and jagged peaks looking like castle-towers. Across, a waterfall and two or three successive waterfalls made a white line down almost the whole side. We could scarcely see the water but could hear the roar. White birds sailed around, making a pretty bit of life against the green background, the only life that we could then see, for the valley is no longer inhabited.

There is a very interesting story about it to come later, but there was another life, and we soon heard it, when a young kid cried. Looking from our camp carefully in the direction of the sound we saw the goat, black with a white spot on the forehead, gazing at us. She moved a bit so that we could see her size. The hunter of the party circled round so as to shoot from behind. It seemed an age, while we lay low keeping our eyes on the goat, while the hunter made his way carefully through the woods towards the spot. We held our breath in suspense, when—crash! and the goat fell headlong, turning many somersaults into the canyon. She dropped a thousand feet. The man who shot her started down the thousand-foot path for his game. It looked like a hazardous undertaking to us above, who shouted to him from time to time, to aid him in his direction that he might find the object of his search. At last he found it and disappeared, looking very small in the distance. He came back, empty-handed from the gulch. The goat was smashed into so many pieces he could not carry it up with him. The boys in the party meantime had found the kid, which was surely not more than a day old. It had a beautiful coat of brown, mixed with black and white; a black stripe ran down his back. He could not even walk, he was so young. We took turns, coddling him in our arms on the way home. When we arrived, we gave him milk from the spoon. It was a difficult process to get him to take it. The whole incident of the goat, the cry, the goat discovered, the stalking and shooting, hunting for it below, and the rescue of the kid, was thrilling and unusual to one onlooker at least.

After we returned to the lovely woods, we prepared a grand meal to be eaten with our neighbor's family. Corn bread and apple pie were made over the fire. Stew, and roast beef—roast tenderloin of wild bull which had been given us—wild pig, spaghetti and coffee completed our repast. We had quite a banquet and sat up to the table to eat it—a great luxury. We are wandering where we got table manners will be like when we get home, after sitting about a camp fire and eating for two weeks.

August 22nd, Friday. At about 9.30, after we had finished breakfast, Mr. Knudsen called, to tell us that with other campers we were invited to walk to Kalaheua. We were glad to go again. Other from the camp nearby made up the party with us. There were horses for sale who wished to ride. When we reached our destination, we were told the story of Koolau, the leper.

Koolau was first known to Mr. Knudsen as a worker on his father's plantation, where he came as a young man. He was honest, intelligent and efficient. Mr. Knudsen, who was then a boy, was a companion of Koolau on his hunting expeditions. Koolau was a skilled hunter, man and huntman and taught Mr. Knudsen many valuable lessons. Time passed on, and he married and had a son, but he still continued in the employ of Mr. Knudsen on the plantation. Often, large hunting parties were made up, with Koolau as leader. Once a doctor was in the party and observed Koolau. He afterwards remarked that Koolau was a leper. Upon examination by doctors, such a verdict was pronounced. After that, Koolau removed his home from that of others. He never went to other people's homes, but they were welcome to his.

He was expected to go to Molokai with other lepers. His wife was engaged as a helper in the colony, where she had many other relatives. Koolau was a law-abiding man and made ready to go. Two years were by, and the order was not executed by officials. The law was then made that no person exempt from the disease would be allowed to go to the leper colony in any capacity. Following that came the order to Koolau to be ready at the wharf at a certain time to go with other lepers to Molokai. The new law prevented his wife from going, although he and his son had to go, the latter having the disease.

Koolau's wife would then be bereft of all that was dear to her, since she was ready. You have not fulfilled your promise. You have cheated me and put me off. Now, if you want me you must come for me."

He retreated to his home in Kalaheua Valley where gathered in time quite a few lepers' families. They were industrious, quiet people. The officers took up the case of Koolau later and formed a posse for the purpose of securing him. Koolau wrote to the sheriff, with whom he had hunted and ridden, saying that if he came for him armed he would have to shoot him, but he would be sorry to shoot a friend; but that he himself would never fire the first shot. The sheriff consulted Mr. Knudsen, who said that Koolau was a man of his word, and that if he had said he would shoot, that he meant it; also that he would not shoot first. The sheriff laughed and said: "Koolau won't shoot."

He went for him, Koolau retreated with his family to a fortified place which he himself had prepared. The search for Koolau was long. No one knew of his hiding place where he could be found. His hiding place was found and the sheriff and men approached. The sheriff fired, but did not hit Koolau. Then Koolau fired, intending to injure the man's right arm but not to kill. The bullet, however, broke an artery, causing the man to bleed to death. Other officials either fled or were shot. Koolau retreated what first aid he could get to the sheriff whom he had shot, not thinking the shot fatal. The next day when the sheriff was found, he had been dead for some time.

Koolau continued to stay in retreat. Another body of men was sent to find him, but they never did, although Koolau overheard their meetings every night and knew all their plans. After that, a reward of a thousand dollars was offered for Koolau, either dead or alive. At that time, public opinion was aroused in his favor and the remark was made that if any man captured Koolau he would not live to get his reward. No one ever tried it. Koolau lived somewhat more in peace for years. He was even known to appear in daylight. He made remarkable saddles. Several shipments of his saddles have been sent to South America. Finally, he died, worn out. His wife survived him, when after some time she married again. I am told that she was a beautiful woman, tall, slender and quite fair for a Hawaiian, and that she was also a crack shot with the gun. The valley which once was the home of many people, is now absolutely deserted. It is quite inaccessible. Many of the natives died; others, in time, left the valley. It is beautiful, all the same, to look at from our altitude of 4,000 ft.

August 23, Saturday. We were bound for another deserted, and almost inaccessible valley running parallel with Kalaheua, called Nuioloi. The way led first through the most beautiful woods, over a very winding trail. The latter part of the way was more in the open, following a ridge up and down to the sea, with an increasingly lovely view as we approached, of sea, coast line and valleys. We reached our destination at the cliff marking the end of the range. We looked down the precipice into the water, and along the coast to Haena, observing the coast of the valley of Kalaheua which we had seen from above the day before. It was a hot place to sit in, with no shade whatsoever. After luncheon, we turned and made our way back up the steep trail, stopping now and then to rest and gaze again at the wonderful view of sea and valley and coastline. When we finally got into the woods, we were glad. We were all quite hot and found the water-lemons refreshing. We gathered quantities of them. The walk through the woods, home, seemed endless and sometimes we felt sure we had lost our way, but at last we came upon the road, and were soon back in tent, drinking water by the bucketful. The trip, we all decided, was the loveliest so far as scenery was concerned, but quite difficult. For years, it had been considered too difficult for a woman.

August 24th, Sunday. A quiet day in camp. We had lemon pie for dinner; a luxury. Callers from another camp came in the afternoon.

August 25th, Monday. About 8.40 we left camp for Halemanu. There we took a beautiful cliff walk, from which we obtained a lovely view of the canyon. Had a swim in their lovely swimming-pool and then proceeded on to Waipo. This is a lovely stream, with numerous fine waterfalls and a pool of water of swimming. From there, we walked into the canyon to the edge of the canyon for some distance, giving us lovely views of the canyon walls with their brilliant and varied coloring, and the sea in the distance. We reached our tent at about three o'clock.

August 26th, Tuesday. Another trip to Waipo from the opposite direction. We visited Lookout Rock, had a swim in Waipo pool, and then on to Halemanu, where we swam again. Our return was through a pretty wood road, a short cut home.

August 27th, Wednesday. A quiet day in camp. I spent much time in the morning at Mrs. Hardy's in her camp chair, reading. Wrote many letters. In the evening, we went to the Danford camp to mail them.

August 28th, Thursday. Today we made an early start for Kawaiki, a stream some miles away. Our companions who were to have joined us, did not show up, so we stayed at home and wrote letters instead, and made arrangements to go the following day. In the evening, we took a short walk and visited Mrs. Hardy who played on a ukelele and sang Hawaiian songs for us.

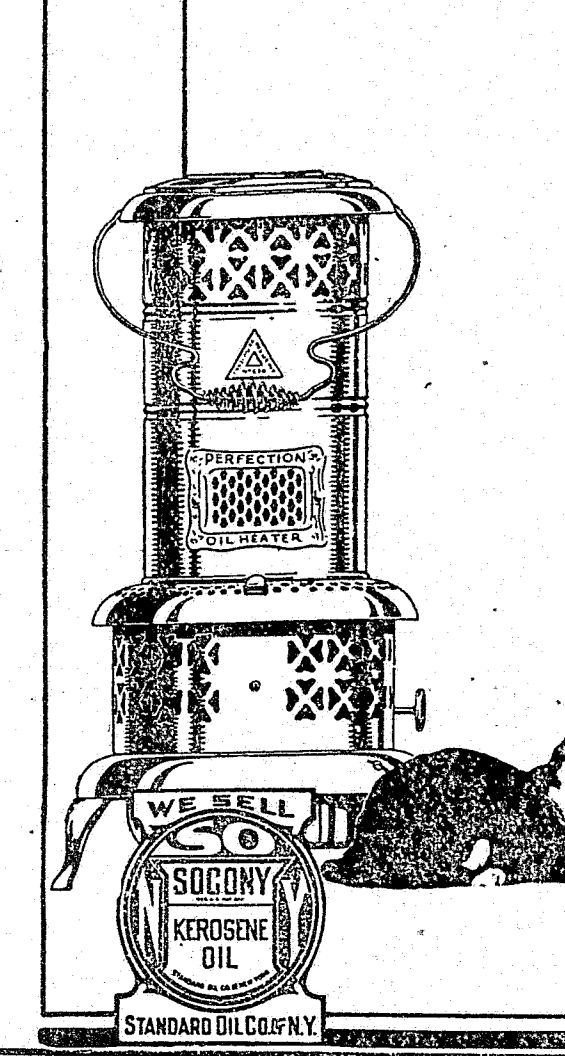

August 29th, Friday. Our companions joined us on the hike to Kawaiki. We had a lovely walk through the woods, some gathered mokihana berries. I gathered mail. We took our time and reached the pool of the Kawaiki River at about noon. It was a very large pool, and quite deep. We could not touch bottom except at the ends. We swam the length of the pool and back, and then had luncheon. After that, we read or sewed for an hour. The return trip through the woods in the late afternoon was very enjoyable. The birds' notes were so sweet. The afternoon sun brought out the attention trees that we had not noticed in going over.

August 30, Saturday. My day off duty. Did some laundry in the brook, and swam before breakfast. After breakfast, we went on a writing tour, but the time until about noon, when we bade farewell to many of our fellow-campers. Mr. Hardy came with the mail, later.

August 31, Sunday. Not a very clear day. A rainy and fair, in turns. Spent the forenoon after breakfast writing letters and papers. They surely were black! Finally, in despair I took them to the brook to finish the job. We were invited to the Hardy's for supper at 5 p. m. It was an auspicious occasion, to sit up to a real table, with a tablecloth, and to such a feast, prepared by Mrs. Hardy and served with such gracious hospitality!

HOUSES AND HOMES

The present scarcity of houses for rental is significant as showing not only the conditions that have held up building, but in also suggesting the future growth of many towns. It is true, that houses are scarce, but are we hunting for houses or homes? A house alone, or an apartment alone, does not make a home. Have we not become so used to luxuries that when we seek for homes we ask first of all, "Have they all the modern conveniences?" To be sure, it would be a wonderful thing if every family could have all the luxuries that go with the up-to-date and expensive apartment house. It is quite likely, however, that such conditions will never exist until the millennium.

We shall have to learn that home-hunting and house-hunting are two different things, and that we may have comfortable, cheerful homes without all of the luxuries that go with the expensive apartments will take only a drive through our country districts to learn that many well-ordered homes are to be found all through Maine—homes that are lacking in many of the modern conveniences but are real homes in the true sense of the word.

This is not a plea for a step backward; it is simply a statement of facts and a plea for the house-hunter to consider well when complaining of the lack of houses that he cannot expect all of the luxuries for a few dollars a month but he can have as pleasant and cheerful a home as the man with the luxuries and for less money.

WHAT'S IN MAN

A man weighing 150 pounds will contain approximately 3500 cubic feet of gas—oxygen, hydrogen and nitrogen—in his constitution, which at 80 cents per 1000 cubic feet would be worth $2.80 for illuminating purposes. He also contains all the necessary fats to make a 15-pound candle. His system contains 22 pounds and 10 ounces of carbon, or enough to make 9360 lead pencils. There are about 50 grains of iron in his blood and the rest of the body would supply enough of this metal to make one spike large enough to hold his weight. A healthy man contains 54 ounces of phosphorus. This deadly poison would make 800,000 matches, or enough poison to kill 500 persons. This, with two ounces of lime, make the stiff bones and brains. No difference how sour a man looks (says the Electrical Experimenter), he contains about 60 lumps of sugar of the ordinary cubical dimensions, and to make the seasoning complete there are 20 spoonfuls of salt. If a man were distilled into water he would make about 38 quarts, or more than half his entire weight. He also contains a great deal of starch, chloride of potash, magnesium, sulphur, chloride of sodium. Break the shells of 1000 eggs into a huge pan or basin, and you have the contents to make a man from his toenails to the most delicate tissues of his brain.

Does Ignition give you trouble?

Very often something besides the magneto is to blame for faulty ignition. Frequently it's poor gasoline that fails to vaporize properly and therefore ignites reluctantly and burns slowly and incompletely. You can easily eliminate this ignition trouble by standardizing on SOCONY Motor Gasoline. It is carefully refined and uniform in quality wherever you buy it—and you are never far away from a garage or service station that sells SOCONY.

Fill up on SOCONY and once your carburetor is adjusted for this quick-burning fuel, you are sure of plenty of power on a lean mixture that burns up completely—that gives big mileage per gallon in all weathers.

At filling time look for the red, white and blue SOCONY Sign.

The subject of shortbread, so much talked about by Scotch and English bakers, is a very old-fashioned kind, remarked our hostess as so extremely rich that the very taste lingered long after eating it.

"Well," said Patsy, "there's nothing like that about the shortbread here at our house—Lorna Doone said it was the best she ever tasted. It's so good as was the old-fashioned kind, remarked our hostess as so extremely rich that the very taste lingered long after eating it."

Baking note: The perfect shortbread is mealy, crumbly and not over-rich. Add to all this a wonderful flavor, developed by scientific baking, and you have LORNA DOONE Biscuit, which come all ready to serve, by the pound or in the famous In-er-seal Trade Mark package. The name LORNA DOONE is on every biscuit.

LET'S GO

Put one hundred men on an island where fish is a staple article of sustenance. Twenty-five of the men catch fish. Twenty-five hunt fruit and vegetables. The entire company eats what is gathered and prepared.

So long as everybody works there is plenty. All hands are happy.

Ten of the allotted fish catchers stop catching fruit and vegetable part of the fish they catch.

Five more continue to catch fish, but only part of the day at it.

Fewer fish go into the community kitchen.

But the same number of men insist upon having the same amount of fish to eat as they had before.

The fifty men who formerly caught and cooked the fish have less to do. But they continue to demand food.

Gradually greater burdens are laid upon the fruit and vegetable hunters.

These insist upon a larger share of fish in return for their larger efforts. It is denied them and soon twenty of the twenty-five quit gathering fruit and vegetables.

But the one hundred men continue to insist upon their right to eat.

The daily food supply gradually shrinks. The men with two fish demands three bananas in exchange for one of their fish.

The man with one banana refuses to part with one for fewer than three fish.

Finally the ten men remaining at work quit in disgust. Everybody continues to quit in disgust. Everybody continues to quit in disgust.

CAUSE OF SUGAR SHORTAGE

It would be rather difficult to find a place where sugar is used, who has not wondered at the shortage of that very essential article that has existed during the last few months.

Portland grocer wrote Senator Hale in August asking his assistance in obtaining an explanation of the situation. The Senator submitted the question to the food administration and Mr. Mullenford, assistant counsel replied in part as follows:

"The shortage of sugar from which various localities in the United States have suffered recently is attributed to three factors: First: Many wholesalers, as well as canneries and confectionery factories failed to place their orders in the early spring of this year when the refineries could have filled their orders without difficulty. This failure was no doubt attributable in part to the stabilized price of sugar maintained by the government which did not offer dealers a rise in price during the season of heavy demand. It was also due in part to larger demands for sugar than had been anticipated by many dealers. To whatever cause due, refineries were deluged with orders in the latter part of May and during June, and they fell behind with their orders in an unusual manner. Second: The refining capacity is limited, and with orders piled up they were unable to expand their output, although they operated at full capacity both night and day. Third: During the latter part of July the situation was complicated by a marine strike which held Cuban and Porto Rican raw sugars at Atlantic and Gulf ports for three weeks, and many refineries were forced to reduce their purchases at that time from 25 to 50 per cent because of the nonavailability of raw sugar."

"The consumption of sugar in the United States thus far this year has been above normal. If the present rate of increased consumption continues, we will consume this year 4,000,000 long tons of sugar as against 3,496,000 tons last year and 3,684,000 in 1917. There has been no restriction on consumption by the government since November, 1918."

The heads of two refineries explained the shortage to the Massachusetts State commission Sept. 18th. W. E. Green, manager of the American Sugar Refinery, said the shortage was due to a general and country-wide demand for the commodity.

He said that one cause of the shortage is the gaps of time between the arrival of sugar cargoes. In July the refinery was fairly busy, but in August it was shut down practically half of the time. In September it was closed two days of the week because of the lapse between cargoes. Sometimes there will be four or five cargoes of raw sugar close together. But now the refinery is running practically at full capacity.

The refinery was then averaging 4300 pounds a day.

Dwight C. Thomas, vice-president and manager of the Bevere refinery, said the consumption of sugar in the country this year will be the largest in the history of the United States. Last year the total for the country was 3,800,000 tons. This year, for the first six months it was over 3,000,000 tons and it will probably go over 4,000,000 tons for the year.

Prohibition had considerable to do with the increased consumption of sugar, also general prosperity. "The working people are buying more than ever before and are eating more candy than ever," he said.

Prohibition has much to do with the increased consumption of candy. He added that his refinery turns out about 2700 barrels a day.

A representative of the Bevere Refinery in Maine, told the writer of this article that one cause of the shortage was the neglect of the wholesalers to place their orders early. He said he called on the trade in Bangor in June and but one firm gave him an order for future delivery. The same condition existed throughout the State and the refinery had had its capacity into October.

When the dealers woke up, the refinery had had its capacity into October. When the dealers woke up, the refinery had had its capacity into October.

NORWAY AND VICINITY

HARKEN BACK ON THE PAST Twenty-four years ago this week, John H. Murdock left the road this week until spring. He travels through New Hampshire and Vermont, overland selling Brown's Instant Relief. Mr. Murdock has followed the business for 3 years and covered 3050 miles by team.

Gen. G. L. Beal, Col. W. W. Whitmarsh, Cyrus S. Tucker and Freeland Howe attended the ceremonies in Portland Tuesday of the State presentation of the silver service to the V. S. Cruiser "Maine."

Water pipes are being laid to the County buildings. The trench diggers find it cold work with the earth frozen in places.

Alton Wheeler is visiting his home in South Paris during a short vacation at Bates College.

Bridgton stage failed to connect with the train Tuesday forenoon because of ice laden trees that obstructed the road in many places.

A public bath room has been installed in Charles W. Littlewood's barber shop. It was opened this week, prices 6 baths for a dollar.

An unusual potato crop was harvested this year. Fryeburg Center reports the tubers bring 20c per bushel at the depot.

Rex Theatre, Norway Lovers of high class feature pictures should not miss the great holiday bill at the Rex Theatre tomorrow at either the matinee or evening shows when Edgar Rice Burroughs' "The Romance of Tarzan of the Apes" will be seen in a new feature. This large number of film enthusiasts who have been sending in requests to Mr. DeCroteau regarding the date upon which the concluding chapters of "Tarzan of the Apes" would be shown, will have their demands gratified.

The "Romance of Tarzan" presents an even more gripping story, carrying the leading personalities in this epic of primitive life and the higher walks of civilization along to a denouement that is most surprising and highly satisfactory.

One of the most striking beauty provides a background for much of the thrilling action, while savage cannibals, apes, tigers, lions, leopards and an almost human elephant give unforgettable novelty to the story at various stages of its development.

Elmo Lincoln, Emil Markey and the same strong cast of players that appeared in "Tarzan of the Apes" will be seen in "The Romance of Tarzan." As an extra added feature, Miss Grace Dean and her orchestra have been engaged for the evening shows.

The matinee is at 2 o'clock and the evening shows are at 7 and 8:30. Reserved seats for the evening are now on sale at the Rex Box Office.

Particular interest attaches to the presentation of "His Majesty, the American," the Douglas Fairbanks picture, which will be shown at the Rex next Monday and Tuesday. "His Majesty, the American" is said to be the most ambitious production that Fairbanks has ever undertaken. Eight weeks were devoted exclusively to the preparation of the scenario alone.

Marjorie Daw plays the leading female role in the picture and Sam Sothern, brother of E. H. Sothern, and other notables are included in the cast.

In addition to a company of high salaried actors the picture in themselves guarantee splendid support for the agile "Doug." His Majesty, the American is said to have cost a fortune in point of actual production.

The feature is in 8 reels and is without question one of the big features of the year and for this reason the management has booked this feature for two days instead of one, so that everyone in Norway and nearby towns would have the chance to see this great picture.

FROM THE FRANKLIN JOURNAL "We are frequently in receipt of testimonies relative to the fetching quality of our want column. Frank P. Rand, who advertised for a position, writes, 'My adv. got me a first class position. This is what the J-T advs. always do. But in order to get a first class position the party advertising must be worth the position, or in other words, as the Rambler has often said, 'The goods advertised must be worth the price asked, and of the kind that the people want.' Then they will sell every time."

TO TEACH THRIFT IN SCHOOLS Before the war suggestion that thrift should be incorporated in the curriculum of the American school system was questioned, therefore that strong counter-forces must remain active, and nowhere is there a better opportunity for the sway of these forces than in the school room. The pliability and responsive quality of the youthful mind makes it possible to lay a foundation of thrift habits through the medium of the schools that will prove of tremendous advantage to this country in the future, and as each succeeding generation goes forth into active life, the thrift tendencies of the Nation will be continually augmented.

It is a matter of National interest that the National Education Association, which comprises the great pedagogic body of the Nation, has perpetuated America's emphasis on the great pedagogic body of the Nation, has shown appreciation of the need of perpetuating American thrift through the process of education.

In 1915 a Thrift Committee composed of the American Society for Thrift and the members of that organization and the members of the National Education Association, has now brought its labors to the place of practical demonstration by preparing an outline of thrift studies for the schools.

A series of text books is being issued, and from this beginning the work will be broadened and developed as fast as possible.

Mrs. Albert J. Patch, of Rosindale, Mass., writes: "Before taking your medicine (Dr. True's Elixir) I was troubled with what I thought stomach trouble. I had that terrible gnawing in my stomach nearly all the time. Within half an hour after eating a hearty meal, I would have that same disagreeable feeling. I was losing in weight every day. After taking your medicine (Dr. True's Elixir) I was relieved of that terrible gnawing in my stomach, expelled worms, and I felt like a new person in many ways, and would heartily recommend it to any one suffering as I did." Headaches, tired feeling, weakness, spots before the eyes, bad breath, sleeplessness, irritability, dizziness, constipation can be relieved, if you take the prescription known as Dr. True's Elixir, The Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. It has done much for sick people, men, women and children, ever since 1851, over 48 years reputation. AT ALL DEALERS.

SELLING CAN HANDLES IN
MAINE'S GREAT POTATO PATCH

The run from Presque Isle to Kelley's in Lincoln is about 130 miles. It was easily done in one day including dinner and several other stops. A half dozen can handles were made with gross receipts of $1.25. Dinner cost $2.25 and consisted of cold boiled potatoes, corned beef, bread and slate-colored tea. No sugar was on the table. It was at the only hotel of a big potato shipping depot where mud was 4 to 8 inches deep in all directions.

Since then I have sent 12 dozen handles to four of the people I called on that day. This shows there is a demand for my wares.

One of the worn-out editors of the Portland Evening Express, who has a hoggish name, was seen at the Lincoln House. He and his wife had come from Moosehead Lake and were on their way to Square Lake or some other body of water in Arrostock. He was looking nicely and said he was much better than when he left the city a few weeks back. Of course I gave him a tin can with handle attached, which was carefully placed in the archives of their car for future reference.

Lincoln is more of a town than I expected. It has many good stores, houses and churches. The Eastern Manufacturing Company have a big plant and make pulp and paper. They give employment to a thousand people. At one time a newspaper was published here, but not now. The postmaster gets about $2000 per year for holding down the job and I am told Kelley is full every night. I mean the hotel owned by Mr. Kelley.

There is Lincoln, Center Lincoln and South Lincoln with a taxable value in excess of three-fourths of a million. Geo. Carrier, formerly of Norway, lives in one of the Lincolns. He took the Advertiser for years, but now does not have it. I suppose he has lost interest in the home town or maybe has died. If I remember correctly, he assisted in landing the only salmon I ever took out of Penesseewassee Lake. The fish was as long as a joint of stove pipe and had contrary spells while coming to the net. That was years ago before I became interested in tinware.

Much instruction was given as the best way of getting to Bangor. All seemed to agree that the west side of the river was the best. Some said go to Lagrange and follow the ridge into the city; others said take the first left-hand road after crossing the Penobscot and follow the river. This we did and went through the abandoned desolation of Bangor and Argyle. For ten miles there wasn't a house and then came a dozen or so deserted ones. We came out at Pea Cove. In the 18 miles there wasn't more than a half dozen inhabited places. Most of the road was good, but narrow. Fortunately no autos were met. A mile or more of the road was little less than a continuous slough hole. W. H. Mosher of Orono said the way we came was better than on the east side.

Dinner was got at the Bangor House and a dollar each was paid, which was not unreasonable compared with what we got for 75 cents each the day before. Several familiar faces were seen but they didn't care to recognize a tinware peddler—I was not molested.

Since the big fire and the death of Capt. Chapman and the armistice between P. O. Beal and Joe Bass I have little interest in the Queen City of the East. Not enough, with its now prominent citizens, to explain the beauties of my Economy Handles or even expose them for overcost. I passed out quietly and unmolested. At 703 Main street I called for matches and was induced to sell a dozen handles to a lady who wanted them for doughnut cutters. They leave no hole in the doughnut and are pleasing to the eye and fit the mouths.

In Hampden I wanted to see the law office and old home of Uncle Hannibal Hamblin because he migrated from Paris Hill a great many years ago and later became prominent as a statesman and renowned for never wearing an overcoat. I could not do it as there was a church sociable that afternoon and everybody was there and I didn't feel like disturbing them.

The stone paving block industry looks as though it had been scolded out in sterile soil and was waiting for the side tracking of cement. When that will come, I can't say.

The ports and forts, clam-flats and fish weirs were passed and handles sold in every borough. The people about here seemed to know a good thing and wanted it.

At Camden I struck a head flaw and was unable to convince the E. B. Crockett 5 and 10 cent store that there was money for them in my line of goods. They have two nice stores: one in Camden and the other in Thomaston. I was perhaps unfortunate in seeing the lesser end of the firm, the buying boss was absent. Have since heard from him and he writes: "Not wanted now." I interpret the "now" as meaning that he may sometime want them. So I'm not entirely without hope.

Ed. Hanson isn't mayor of Belfast this year so I called at Fred Jones' variety store opposite the I. O. O. F. hall. The proprietor was absent and Miss Louisa Webber patiently listened to my story and permitted me to leave a sample. No pressure of eloquence or city references could induce her to buy in the absence of the boss. Later on I sold Mr. Jones 200 handles and consider him a wise man. He knows a good thing when seen.

A few years ago I was not permitted to whistle on the sidewalk in this city. It was when Ed Hanson was mayor, and they were planning on doing great things such as annexing Boston, Mass., and doing away with the Belfast Water Company. The finest grade pine shavings and artifiactly curled, too, disturbed the overwrought sensibilities of the populace and I was requested not to whistle. A man even came out of the bank and swept up the few shavings I had made. It is not so now, or if so not noticeable. However, I gave Mother my jack-knife before coming to the city lest I should forget.

Belfast had a population in 1910 of 4618 with a history commencing 1770 and terminating at the death of the Waldo County Herald in 1918. That is all I know of it. If there is a demand for my handles I may become better acquainted.

Rockland is a fish town or is soon to become so. Here you see the Three Black Crow baking powder signs and nowhere else in the state. Bert Shepard, Maynard Bird and Gov. Cobb have lived here. It is the home of lime, plaster and special privileges, also ex-Mayor Arnold Jones and the Gazette. Oliver Otis died a few years ago and was the last democrat I knew in this section.

Editor Fuller was out of town when I called and Arnold Jones made his excuses for not going to Portland with me to attend the Maine Press Association's Annual Meeting. Maybe he knew the meeting would be over before I got there and that I was running a half day behind the schedule. If so, he wisely said

With Three-Point Cantilever Springs New Overland 4 Seems to "Sail Over The Roads"

THE new Three-Point Cantilever Springs of Overland 4, by their special construction and design, protect car and passengers from ordinary road jolts. Bumping, twisting, swaying and vibrating are wonderfully lessened. The blows of the road seldom reach you. There is less tendency to bodily fatigue after long rides.

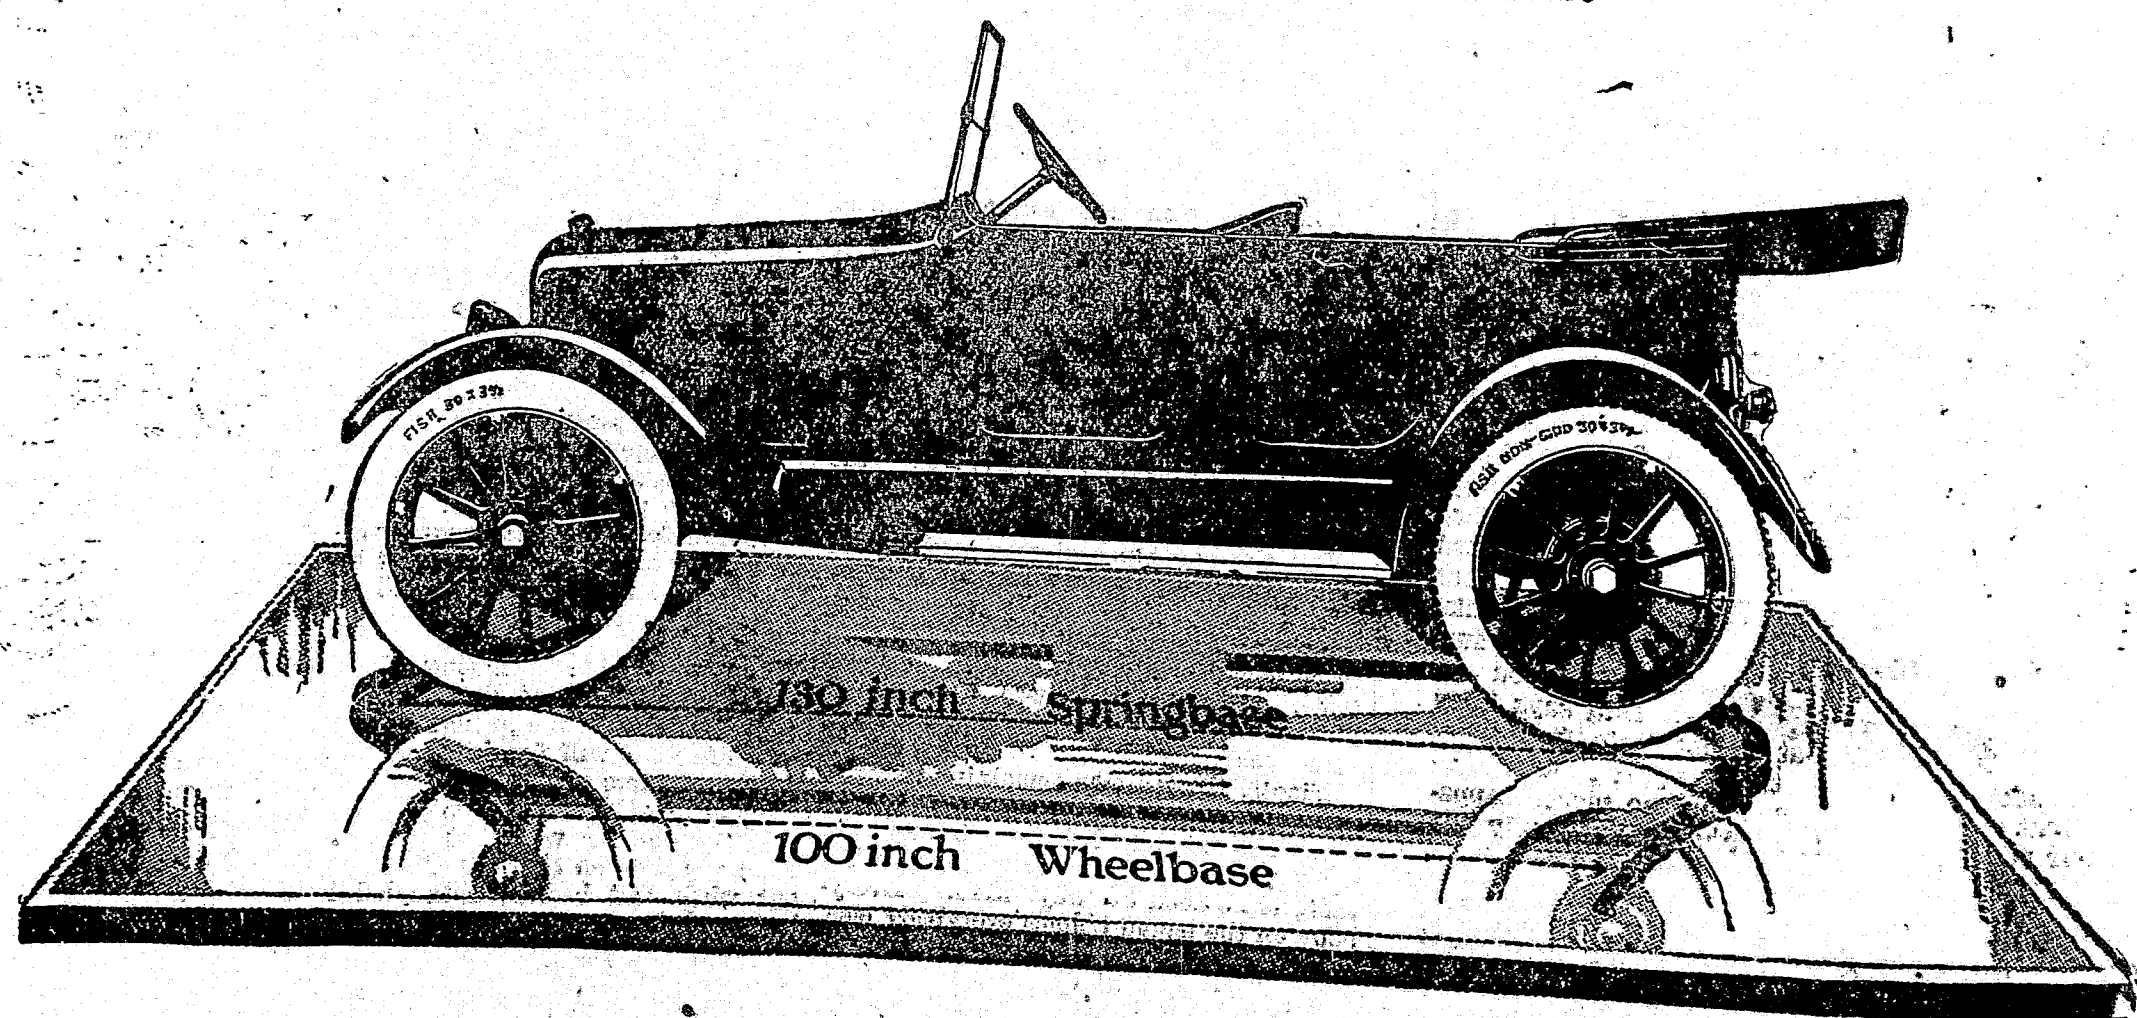

The springs of Overland 4 attached at the ends of a 130-inch Springbase give the riding comfort and road steadiness heretofore possible only with cars of long wheelbase and great weight, yet Overland 4 retains the light weight and economy advantages of 100-inch wheelbase.

Three-Point Cantilever Springs protect the car from the hammering and wear of road blows. They lengthen its life and reduce upkeep costs.

Equipment of Overland 4 is dependable and complete from Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting to Tillotson Carburetor.

250,000 miles of test have made the strength and endurance of this car a matter of record.

nothing and I got into the city at the eleventh hour to meet the newspaper fellows as they were leaving the Palmetto to inspect the city of Portland. This is a plain statement of fact. Since I had left home the Press Meeting programme had been changed.

Thus ends the story.

In the 5 weeks since my return I have shipped to these dealers almost a thousand handles and the end is not yet. An inventory of November 10th shows I have sold in excess of seven thousand handles in the last three months.

Mother, Walter and I had been absent almost a month. I caught 8 fish, none on a fly; got two dozen specimens of the Stone Age of man; sold 2304 handles to 77 different dealers; paid for 82 gallons of gasoline and traveled 926 miles.

CATARRH DOES HARM

Whether It Is of the Nose, Throat, or Other Organs, Get Rid of It.

Catarrh of the nose or throat when it becomes chronic weakens the delicate lung tissues, deranges the digestive organs, and may lead to consumption. It impairs the taste, smell and hearing, and affects the voice. It is a constitutional disease and requires a constitutional remedy.

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which by purifying the blood removes the cause of the disease and gives permanent relief. This alternative and tonic medicine has proved entirely satisfactory to thousands of families in three generations.

If there is biliousness or constipation, take Hood's Pills—they are a thorough cathartic, a gentle laxative.

FAT FOLKS LEARN

HOW TO REDUCE

YOUR WEIGHT

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way

People, who are over-burdened with superfluous fat, know only too well the discomfort and ridicule that over stout people have to bear.

If you are carrying around 5 or 10 pounds of unnecessary fat, you are unnecessarily weakening your vital organs and are carrying a burden which destroys the beauty of your figure.

There is no need of anyone suffering from superfluous fat. If you want to reduce your weight in a simple, safe and reliable way, without starvation, diet or tiresome exercise, spend as much time as you can in the open air, breathe deeply and get from any good druggist a box of Tasso; take one tablet after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week so as to know just how fast you are losing weight and don't leave off the treatment or even skip a single dose until you are down to normal.

Tasso is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps digestion and is designed to consume the excessive fatty tissue by increasing the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight. Footsteps become lighter, your work seems easier and lighter and more buoyant feeling takes possession of your whole being.

Every person who suffers from superfluous fat should give this treatment a trial, there is nothing better.
